Enos!

Thanks. I am hopeful that I will be present for today's meeting. If I am present, I can suggest these comments on my own. However, if I'm not present at the time that meeting-minutes are approved, can you please represent that I would like the meeting minutes to reflect that I emailed you about amending the minutes pertaining to my open-forum item? My suggested addition:

"Dr. Wadsworth generally inquired how MH staff members that were not currently receiving emails (that are sent to all other members of the MH Dept.) could be added to those distribution lists, as the emails provided helpful/crucial information for MH staff members."

Some members of the staff who were in attendance of the meeting offered helpful suggestions. Dr. Wadsworth indicated that he had tried the suggested methods, but he had not been successful in integrating the excluded members of the staff onto the distribution lists. No additional methods were suggested to resolve this issue."

Dr. Monthei,

I would like to express my growing concern with regard to Dr. Wadsworth's strange and inappropriate behavior at work. Dr. Wadsworth's choice to include the management team on emails which clearly do not pertain to us, or require our input in any way is uncomfortable and unnecessary. I feel that by including myself and the rest of the management team in such emails, Dr. Wadsworth is unwillingly making us part of his personal agenda, which no one asked to be a part of.

Additionally, Dr. Wadsworth's attendance at our management and subcommittee meetings makes for an uncomfortable environment. His questions/comments are at times redundant and peculiar, and do not seem appropriate for a management meeting setting. He utilizes the management meeting as an opportunity to raise questions (of which he already knows the answers) specifically to you, rather than as an opportunity to creatively discuss ideas with the group as a whole, which is what I see the purpose of these meetings to be.

Furthermore, Dr. Wadsworth's comments have become increasingly bizarre, as evidenced by his most recent analogy/diatribe on aircraft mechanics. Due to the awkwardness of his presence, and my confusion over his agenda, I no longer feel comfortable bringing my questions/concerns to the management meetings. This saddens me, as up until relatively recently, the meetings have been a safe space to openly collaborate with colleagues. I looked forward to these meetings and saw them as a unique venue to grow and thrive as a professional.

Overall, I have grown more and more uncomfortable at work, which served as the catalyst to finally bring forth the above mentioned concerns. I feel that not only is Dr. Wadsworth's behavior unprofessional, inappropriate, disruptive, and strange, but as a result of his behavior, my productivity is ultimately hindered and our work environment disrupted.
